What are the two kinds of modes?

What is the cursor called in the Emacs world?

What's the gray bar below the buffer display called?

What's in it?

What is the white bar below the mode line?

What should you've made a mistake in the minibuffer?

The most common commands are bound to what?

Commands provided by a mode are usually bound to what?

How can you give the full name of a command?

Open a file.

What should you do if you enter a typo in a `find-file` path?

How can you enter the completions window,
so you can select a path?

Insert another file into the current position.

What is the default directory in Emacs?

How can you write the current buffer to another file?

When is this handy?

How can you find the full name and documentation of a keystroke?

How can you find the documentation of a command name?

Which buffer contains the documentation you view?

How can you go from a window split into two buffers back to a single a buffer?

Save the current file to a buffer.

Exit Emacs.

Find which version of Emacs you're using.